

Customer Guide to the Environmental Module on the Resource Center

Welcome to the Office of Property Disposal's Environmental Module located on the Resource Center. The Environmental Module is an excellent resource for federal agencies to learn about the environmental requirements associated with the transfer of federal property. The Office of Property Disposal encourages all federal agencies to review the information located on the Resource Center.

Getting Started

Access the Environmental Module on the Resource Center at: <http://rc.gsa.gov/>. (Internet Explorer is recommended.) No password is necessary.

The Environmental Module's introductory page houses environmental information for federal agencies, state governments, and local public body customers. This page provides customers access to a number of environmental laws and statutes, websites, environmental fact sheets, and GSA's property transfer requirements.

Navigating the Environment Module

Environmental information is organized into four sections:

- Environmental Laws, Regulations, and Executive Orders
- Environmental Framework for Real Property Disposal
- Environmental Fact Sheets
- Environmental Websites

Environmental Laws, Regulations, and Executive Orders

A comprehensive list of environmental topics is provided with links to that environmental topic's respective federal statute, Code of Federal Regulation section, and/or Executive Order.

Environmental Framework for Real Property Disposal

This guidebook provides a summary for customer agencies of the environmental requirements associated with the disposal of federal property.

Environmental Fact Sheets

This section includes a number of fact sheets on environmental topics such as asbestos, lead-based paint, and early transfer authority. Fact sheets are available in PDF format.

Environmental Websites

Additional environmental information related to the disposal of federal property is provided in this section with links to other federal agency websites and publications.

Questions on the Environmental Module and/or its contents, should be directed to:
